Jordan and Perri from Britain's Got Talent-winning dance troupe Diversity visited Beckonham for the official opening of the Maypole Project's Gambado indoor play and party centre.

The duo took time out from rehearsals for the group's Limitless-Reboot tour to mark the occasion last week, unveiling a celebratory plaque and cutting a Gambado tiger cake.

Photo and signing sessions were held before Jordan and Perri tested out the frame, tried the dodgems and spun around on a carousel.

Other activities included face painting, glitter tattoos and balloon modelling.

Managing director of Gambado, Iain Westwater, said: "I am delighted we are open again. It was great to see all our regular members and customers and positive comments about all the features."

Jordan and his smaller colleague Perri from Diversity opened the Gambado play area, met fans and tried out the equipment at the official opening last week. Children also got a chance to use the play area
